FPUA Employees Collect School Supplies & Volunteer Alongside Local Partners to Help Students Head Back to School Ready for Success

FPUA employees came together this summer to support local students and families as they prepared for the start of a new school year.

The effort began with an employee school supply drive benefiting the annual Pack the Backpacks Neighborhood Block Party initiative.

FPUA employees collected pencils and other school supplies, which were combined with contributions from community partners to help complete 460 backpacks filled with the essentials students need for the classroom.

But FPUA employees wanted to do more than collect supplies. The Saturday before the first day of school in St. Lucie County, FPUA team members volunteered alongside local partners at a neighborhood block party, helping distribute the backpacks and supplies directly to children and families.

The event provided an opportunity for FPUA employees and their families to connect with the community beyond the services we provide each day while working alongside organizations that share a commitment to supporting our neighbors.

From contributing supplies to volunteering their time, FPUA employees were proud to be part of a community effort helping local students head into the new school year prepared and ready for success.

Efforts like Pack the Backpacks reflect what can be accomplished when local organizations, volunteers and community partners come together around a shared purpose. FPUA is proud to be part of that work and to continue building meaningful partnerships that strengthen the community we serve.
